

UNITED IS THE WAY™

we keep people in their homes.

» HOUSING SECURITY

What is the best way to tackle homelessness? We believe it's by preventing people from losing their housing in the first place. From rental assistance and eviction prevention for those most at risk of losing their housing to working upstream and providing client-centered services and flexible financial assistance to low-income households, we aim to keep people stably housed.

Responding to the county's homelessness problem is a holistic, multifaceted effort that takes many agencies, organizations, and stakeholders working side by side, doing what each does best. Everyone deserves a safe place to call home, and it's going to take all of us to make it happen.

OUR 21 PARTNERS

Building Changes	Refugee Women's Alliance
Cares of Washington	Riverton Park United Methodist Church
Centro Cultural Mexicano	Solid Ground
FareStart	St. Stephen Housing Association
Housing Connector	Urban League of Metropolitan Seattle
Interaction Transition	Vine Maple Place
King County Bar Association	Wellspring Family Services
Legal Counsel for Youth and Children	YouthCare
Mary's Place Seattle	YWCA of Seattle-King County-Snohomish County
Neighborhood House
Open Doors for Multicultural Families
Reclaiming Our Greatness

SPOTLIGHT: Housing Connector

Housing Connector is a tech-for-good nonprofit that increases access to housing for individuals most in need. Serving as a bridge between community partners and property partners, they provide a single point of contact to get people housed. "The homelessness system is the emergency room, and prevention work is the primary care doctor," said Shkëlqim Kelmendi, founder and executive director of Housing Connector during a United Way Conversations for Change event. Learn more in the news and articles section of our website.